shaniefully. They had been on the ele-vated cars only a short time, and when the train reached Forty-second street, says Miss Brunner, he was fast usieep. She left him and returned home. On investigating to-day she found that no charge had been made against her at the West Twentieth street station. Nor was there the record of such a case at Jefferson Market Court. Miss Brunner lays her trouble to a former woman acquaintance, who, it is said, is a friend of Detective Kehoe.
